After graduating from Vanderbilt in 2019, she worked at TJC full time for a year as the Melkus Family fellow until attending Northwestern Pritzker School of Law from 2020 to 2023.

At Northwestern, Lauren worked with the Center on Wrongful Convictions and was a member of Law Review. She also interned at the US Department of Health and Human Services and externed with a judge on the Northern District of Illinois. Following graduation from Northwestern, she followed her passion for health care law and joined Sidley Austin's Health Care group in the Chicago office in the fall of 2023. At Sidley, Lauren's practice focuses on healthcare enforcement and litigation matters. Lauren is grateful to TJC for solidifying her decision to pursue a legal career focused on health care law.
